Coaches

Sean Cleary, one of the sport's most talented coaches, enters his 12th season at the helm of the West Virginia University cross country and track and field teams in 2018, and he has been associated with both programs for two-and-a-half decades. With his expertise in mentoring, training, conditioning and recruiting distance runners, the Georgetown, Ontario, native has built West Virginia's cross country and track program into national powerhouses, producing nearly 50 combined All-America honors and numerous all-conference runners.

Shelly-Ann Gallimore has been part of the West Virginia University track and field program for over a decade. Under her tutelage, student-athletes competing in horizontal and vertical jump group have advanced to USA Juniors, NCAA Regionals and NCAA Championships. A native of Kingston, Jamaica, she was successful as a student-athlete winning a 2001 NCAA Championship in the triple jump at Auburn. The All-American also was a two-time SEC champion in the triple jump.

Erin O'Reilly has spent over a decade serving as an assistant coach for the West Virginia University cross country and track and field programs in two separate stints. She works primarily with the long-distance sprinters and middle-distance runners for the track and field team. As a runner, she garnered many accolades while also serving as a team captain for WVU cross country and track. The Canton, Ohio, native was the ECAC champion and a NCAA provisional qualifier in the 1,000 meters in track during her senior year. O'Reilly held seven school records in cross country and track by the end of her career.

Clara Santucci serves as the graduate assistant for the West Virginia University cross country and track and field teams. A 2010 graduate of WVU, she was a four-time All-American for the Mountaineers with multiple Big East Championship victories. A native of West Union, West Virginia, she has won two Pittsburgh Marathons, has earned multiple World Marathon Major top-10 placings, earned spots at the 2012 and 2016 U.S. Olympic Marathon Trials and has competed at the Chicago and Boston Marathons.

XC & TRACK CAMP

Camp Description

The 2018 WVU Cross Country and Track & Field Camp will be held June 24-28, and is open to any entrants in middle school or high school. Overnight campers will be housed in WVU Evansdale Residential Complex. Day campers will be picked up and dropped off at this location. All meals will be provided for campers during their stay. Campers will have use of both the indoor and outdoor tracks, various trails surrounding the Morgantown community and the WVU Rec Center, where they can enjoy rock climbing, swimming, court games, and other recreational activities. Campers will be grouped during workouts based on age, training level, and event focus. The camp will include event specific workouts, related educational activities, speakers, and team building activities. Our goal is to educate campers in a positive, healthy, and fun environment, lead by knowledgeable staff and counselors.
